A couple of young people – Silas and Camilla – recently married and going on a wedding trip. They plan to visit the banks of the Niagara River. For a girl who has recently become a happy wife, this trip is an opportunity to see the most beautiful natural wonder – a waterfall, and for her hubby – a chance to give a tear from law enforcement. However, the newlyweds motorcycle does not have time to get to the destination. Just a few kilometers away, he gets into an accident. Camilla dies instantly. But her soul, so eager to spend this holiday, does not want to leave the lifeless body...

To get parole, Silas had to promise the police sheriff that he would marry his niece, Camille Foster. The newly-made bride is in seventh heaven with happiness. She spends the whole day doing wedding chores. The groom is indifferently nearby.

And then came the day of marriage. After the priest's speech, the hero squeezes his consent to become the girl's husband through his teeth.

Young go on a trip to Niagara Falls. A truck crashes into them on the way. From the collision, Camilla flies to the side and instantly dies. The guy gets off with minor damage. But it turns out that the "beloved one" did not die at all. Rather, the soul is in the physically inanimate body. Realizing that something was wrong with his wife, he suddenly begins to take care of her.

A young man washes a decomposing body with formalin (to get rid of an unpleasant smell), selflessly searches for gloves when the heroine's fingers begin to fall off ...

Camilla, in turn, as can, helps the newly-made husband to flee from the police chase – because he is suspected of robbery and murder.

Finally, the couple at the foot of Niagara Falls! But then the heroine is sharply aware of the strangeness and abnormality of the situation and... disappears, finally leaving the words: «I died! In my opinion, this is a good reason for us to leave forever!»...

YY!
