The Secret Of A Tibetan Monastery

Chapter 1

Dr. John Lexman always conducted his research at his hospital. And there were always enough mental patients! So he was forced to keep in shape. Of course, he was not the first person who always catches the eye of a nervous patient with serious abnormalities, who can believe even in the existence of the other world. But in reality that world exists, and this diagnosis was revealed as a neurotic ceremonial, i.e. these are the people who suffer from a spiritual religious life. However, if necessary, they can also manifest superpowers, as happened in one of the hospitals, which was owned by John Lexman himself, he had assistants Gregory and a girl named Diana.

The point is that Gregory and Diane studied patients from within, in other words, they looked into their souls in the course of spiritual conversations, they understood what they were talking about. It was about a secret Tibetan monastery where immortal souls can always roam and communicate with living people, but how do they do it? And that was what they needed to find out by going to this monastery.

But with communication with such people who were ill with such a diagnosis as (neurotic ceremonial) it consists of special small rituals, such as contacting the souls of the dead. These patients were able to overcome the barrier that exists between that world and ours.

This can be achieved with the help of sleep. Sleep is always a kind of negotiating point for people from the world of the living! This experiment was decided by Gregory and Diana. The decided to experiment late at night, when patients sleep, with the help of hypnosis immersed himself in the dream as if they'll just fall asleep, they will not be able to open the door there, where wander the souls.

Chapter 2 The door to the other side

It was the middle of the night, there were three patients in the ward, and with the help of these three patients, they decided to get into that world, and find out what really holds them! However, Hypnosis still helped them, and they were able to open the door to the other side, where the lost souls lived. The fact is that they were able to manage their sleep as if in reality, which they themselves were surprised at. When they got to this monastery, they felt that death was somewhere nearby, that it could take them away, but this did not happen, because no one took the soul. It turns out that this monastery really attracts death, since it was built from human bones.

In one of the mysterious doors that Diana was able to open, there was a mysterious labyrinth in which there were many doors, like a mousetrap for rats. When Diana opened one of these doors, there was an unusual monument in front of her.
